

▶ Ballantyne Elementary School

A Message from the Principal

To our Ballantyne Elementary School families:

This is the first School Progress Report for Ballantyne Elementary, which opened in August 2008. We are sending this to you so that you may be fully informed about our students' academic progress, our staff and our school environment.

I am pleased to report that Ballantyne's composite score on the state End-of-Grade tests was 90.2 percent. As you will see from this report, Ballantyne made High Growth and our school was designated a North Carolina Honor School of Excellence.

In addition, we made Adequate Yearly Progress, the standard set for schools by the No Child Left Behind Act, by meeting all 13 of our targets.

So what are we doing to continue this progress? We are using differentiated instruction, a flexible teaching approach that adapts the curriculum to the specific learning levels of each student. We also give pre-assessments and flexibly group students based on individual needs. Assessment drives all instruction, and we constantly analyze data to make teaching decisions. In addition, teachers set academic and social goals, involving their students as part of the process. As part of their character development, students are expected to take responsibility for their learning and make lifelong connections, rather than simply be involved in drill-and-skill work.

Our faculty is outstanding, with most teachers experienced and highly qualified. Many of them hold advanced degrees and National Board certification. Our teachers work very closely in teams to develop teaching plans and to evaluate their instruction

CMS Accountability Measures

The learning of students in public education is measured in multiple ways. There are assessments given at regular intervals by CMS—tests that we use to measure how students are learning as the school year progresses. Other tests are required by the state and given once or twice a year, such as End-of-Course and End-of-Grade tests. Some of the state test results are also used to calculate district progress on the federal standard of Adequate Yearly Progress for each student. This page provides brief explanations of some of the measures and tests used in CMS.

► Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP)

Our school DID make AYP
(13 of 13 goals met)

The federal No Child Left Behind Act requires that every school make Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP). AYP is an all-or-nothing standard: Every target must be met.

State test results are used to set AYP targets. There are separate targets for the school as a whole and for nine subgroups of students: white, black, Hispanic, Native American, Asian, multiracial, economically disadvantaged students, students with limited English proficiency and students with disabilities. Subgroups of students are measured separately so that an overall score for a class or a school does not mask poor results within a subgroup.

Some schools are more diverse than others, so the number of subgroups varies by school. Therefore, the number of AYP targets varies by school, too. Some schools may have only a few targets to meet; others may have the maximum, which is 41. School attendance and graduation rates are also measured for AYP.

For a more complete overview of AYP, visit www.dpi.state.nc.us/nclb/abcayp/overview/ayp

For details of AYP results for our school and its student groups, visit <http://ayp.ncpublicschools.org>

► ABC Designation

Our school's designation: Honor School of Excellence
(DID meet high growth expectations)

Proficiency: 90.2%

The North Carolina ABCs program was introduced more than a decade ago to help schools improve. It uses two basic measures to assess a school's performance: the Average Growth of students (at right); and the Performance Composite, which measures how well students performed against a state-set standard of academic achievement.

Schools are given one of seven designations. In descending order, they are: Honor School of Excellence, School of Excellence, School of Distinction, School of Progress, No Recognition, Priority School, and Low Performing.

For more information about ABCs, visit <http://abcs.ncpublicschools.org/abcs>

► Average Growth

State Standard: 80%
Our School: 82.9%

Did our students meet the state's expectation for academic growth? Each student is expected to perform as well (or better) on the End-of-Grade assessment as he or she did, on average, during the previous two years. Average Growth for a school is calculated by comparing actual performance to expected performance and then averaging the difference across all students and all subjects. The score above reflects the combined growth rate of all of our students. To make expected growth, a school must have a score of 80% or higher.

► Students Making or Exceeding a Year's Worth of Growth

State Standard: 60%
Our School: 63.2%

Did our students learn as much as they were expected to learn this year? As described above, the state sets expectations for each student based on individual performance for the previous two years. Across the state, about half of students typically meet or exceed this growth expectation. To earn the high-growth designation, a school must meet the average-growth standard described above and also have more than 60% of its students make expected growth.

► Amount of Growth for Students in the Lowest Achieving Group

Our School: 81.1%

Are we helping our low achievers catch up? Historically, some poor and minority students have trailed their classmates in academic achievement. This is called the achievement gap, and closing it is one of the biggest challenges in public education. If the lower-achieving students at a school show academic growth at a faster rate than higher-achieving students, the achievement gap is narrowed. When the percentage for this measure is higher than the Average Growth for the school, the school is closing the achievement gap.

► Positive Responses to Multiple Student Survey Items

Our School's Results:	Safety	96%
	Encouragement	99%
	Engagement	98%

Do our students perceive this school as safe and welcoming? This measure is subjective—it is taken from a student survey.

and student progress. They also hone their skills by undergoing training throughout the year. Improving teaching and learning are absolute priorities at Ballantyne, and teachers are encouraged to try new research-based forms of instruction.

I am one of the principals chosen for an initiative called Freedom and Flexibility with Accountability. This means I have been given some additional autonomy to keep Ballantyne, and our students, moving forward.

Ballantyne has a very diverse student body, and parent support is strong. Our first year was filled with family activities, and we are building a strong, positive culture of involvement. Students may participate in many extra-curricular activities, such as chess club, Girls on the Run, drama club, Odyssey of the Mind and student council. We place great emphasis on character education at Ballantyne, and we recognize students for good character and achievement at a quarterly cultural arts assembly.

We look forward to our second year at Ballantyne, building on the achievements of our first. We certainly have all of the elements needed to be successful as we build relationships in the classroom and in the community.

Sincerely,
Sharon Damaré
Principal

What is the School Progress Report?

In 2006, we introduced the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools Strategic Plan 2010 outlining our vision and strategy to educate our students to compete locally, nationally and internationally.

The plan outlines seven areas of concentration: high academic achievement; effective educators; adequate resources and facilities; safe and orderly schools; freedom and flexibility with accountability; world-class service, and strong parent and community connections. This report summarizes how our school performed in the 2008-09 school year in making progress on these seven goals. On page 3, you will also find an explanation of federal and state accountability measures.

Educators and parents have a common goal of preparing our children to compete in an ever-growing global community. Working together requires frequent dialogue between school and parents, so please feel free to contact the principal or any staff member at our school.
